Some people think that hot things have to be eaten while they're hot, or they'll lose their delicious flavor. But surely there are more people who cool down their food before eating it. So shouldn't we have a special name for people who can eat piping hot food? How about calling them "racy tongues"? I envy people like that, so I picked an embarrassing name.

-Eiichiro Oda, 2003

In Japan, people who can't eat hot foods are said to have a neko jita, a cat's tongue. --Editor

Eiichiro Oda began his manga career at the age of 17, when his one-shot cowboy manga Wanted! won second place in the coveted Tezuka manga awards. Oda went on to work as an assistant to some of the biggest manga artists in the industry, including Nobuhiro Watsuki, before winning the Hop Step Award for new artists. His pirate adventure One Piece, which debuted in Weekly Shonen Jump in 1997, quickly became one of the most popular manga in Japan.

Monkey D. Luffy started out as just a kid with a dream—to become the greatest pirate in history! Stirred by the tales of pirate "Red-Haired" Shanks, Luffy vowed to become a pirate himself. That was before the enchanted Devil Fruit gave Luffy the power to stretch like rubber, at the cost of being unable to swim—a serious handicap for an aspiring sea dog. Undeterred, Luffy set out to sea and recruited some crewmates—master swordsman Zoro; treasure-hunting thief Nami; lying sharpshooter Usopp; the high-kicking chef Sanji; Chopper, the walkin' talkin' reindeer doctor; and the mysterious archaeologist Robin.

The crew's next destination is Skypiea, an island in the clouds ruled over by the powerful God Enel. As soon as they arrive, they get arrested for trespassing and are put on trial, after which Nami and half the crew are led away to be sacrificed! While the gang faces some fearful challenges put up by the locals, Nami makes an amazing discovery—Upper Yard, the only place among the sky islands made of soil, is actually the other half of Jaya, the island back on the ground! Which means it's also the location of the fabled city of gold, El Dorado! Having freed themselves, the crew begins the search for treasure. But they soon find themselves caught in a battle between Enel's army and the Shandian natives fighting to reclaim the island. Enel predicts, "In three hours, only five people will remain alive." What will happen in his "Survival Game"?

Reader: At Jump Festa 2003, when someone asked “Why is Zoro so awesome?” you answered, “Because he’s just like me,” putting the Japanese voice actor for Zoro, Kazuya Nakai, on the spot.

You need to get out of the picture immediately.

Okay, now that Eiichiro Oda is gone, we can begin the Question Corner without further ado.

Let’s begin the Question Corner!!

Oda: I had totally forgotten about that moment. Jump Festa is an annual event in Japan held at the end of the year. It’s huge and lots of fun. I hear that more than 100,000 people attend the two-day event. There’s even a remarkable One Piece musical. It’s amazing. Now, let’s begin the Question Corner.

Q: Hello, Oda Sensei!

I’ve been wondering this for some time: Is there a difference between the captains in the Marine Headquarters and the Auxiliary Marines? Is one stronger than the other? Do they train differently?

—The Big Brother in the Room

A: Yes, there is a difference. The Marine Headquarters are a super elite group within the Marines. The Marine representatives who appear in → plaza in volume 11 are lieutenants, sub-lieutenants and ensigns. If former Captain “Axe-Hand” Morgan and Captain Nezumi from Nami’s village had been at Marine Headquarters, they might have been in that battle. A good rule of thumb is to keep in mind that there is a three-rank difference between the Marine Headquarters and the Auxiliary. Captains in the Auxiliary would be lieutenants, and sub-captains would be sub-lieutenants, etc

Q: Hi, nice to meet you! I'm a big fan of your work. I always listen to the radio at work, and the other day on Nippon Radio I heard a quiz question for Makoto Kitano about a unique type of snow that falls in France. The answer was that the snow is pink! Did you already know about this and is that why you worked it into your storyline?

--Ayumino Chopper

A: Pink snow, huh? Yes, I knew about it. The reason it's pink is that dust attaches to iron particles in the air, causing the snow to look pink or red. This happened in France. In Vienna there were also cases of yellow snow. Sometimes the mischief caused by air pollution creates fantastic scenery.

Q: Hi, Oda Sensei. I have a question about the Kami's vassals in Skypiea.
Gedatsu => the concept of freeing oneself of earthly problems in Buddhism
Shura => the realm of the semi-divine in Buddhism
Satori => enlightenment in Buddhism
Yama => the lord of the afterlife in Buddhism

Did you choose religious names because the storyline takes place in the realm of a kami (god)? Also, if you could, would you please let me know where Ohm's name comes from?

A: Yes, that's right. I'm not religious, so I winged it.

"Om" is a sacred Hindu symbol, written like this:

Reader: Hello. It's nice to meet you, Oda Sensei! There's something I've wondered about for a while. In chapter 198 of volume 22, when Crocodile grabs Vivi by the neck and she says, "I will save this..." I was wondering if the "..." part is connected to Vivi's line in volume 23, chapter 216: "I'd like to continue my adventures, but when it comes down to it, I love this kingdom!!!"? I was thinking, maybe the "..." in chapter 198 stands for "love" from chapter 216! That's what I wanted to know.

--It's Going to Be Okay for Sure

Oda: Oh, thank you for reading into that. You're right, Vivi always feels that way. But the storm of rebellion stamped out the princess's feelings. In that last scene, the citizens must have been moved when Vivi uttered those words that echoed throughout the country (sniff). It's a Beautiful story. SOB... SOB...

Q: Isn't it true that you can't tell your direction on the Grand Line? If that's the case, then why, in volume 24 (chapter 218), is Nami able to say, "Ahead west by northwest!" when she's asked, "What's your Log Pose course?" If you can't give me a straight answer, I request you go for an ice-cold dip at your local swimming pool.

A: Well, it is summer. Umm, it's all good. Even though it is the Grand Line, it's possible near the continent to gauge the correct direction. Nami knew that they were proceeding toward the next island in a west-by-northwest direction, and she's saying that they're on the right route. I'll be skipping that cold swim.

AN IRON
CLOUD?!

Reader: Using the pronunciation that Sanji uses to say "Nami-san ♡" in the One Piece anime series, try saying "nomison." They should sound exactly the same.

● Try this with your friends!

Me: "Nomiso-o-o-n!" What did I just say?

Friend: "Nami-san."

Me: Nope. The correct answer is "nomison."

● One person says either "Nami san" or "nomison" to the other person.

● The other person guesses which it was.

● This continues forever (just kidding).

--Sasuke

Oda: Okaaay. Thank you, Sasuke. You keep that up forever.

Q: In volume 27, chapter 251, page 91, when Usopp says "Ka ching," doesn't he pose like Kamen Rider? How much do you like Kamen Rider, Oda Sensei?

--Pen name: Yo'chan Takoyaki.

A: Have you seen this? 日 → 日 → 日
I used to watch
Kamen Rider on TV a long time ago.

Noontime
Rider

The original story was Based on a manga By Shotaro Ishinomori. He has since passed away

(The sketch shows a simplified way of drawing the face of the Japanese superhero Kamen Rider. First, start with the symbol for "noon" (日) and add other elements to create the face --Ed)

Q: If Zoro and Sanji went head-to-head in all seriousness, who would be strongest? Since Zoro defeated Mr. 1, does that mean Zoro's stronger?

A: Whoa, that was a surprise. I thought you were asking me who would win if Zoro and Sanji compared their manliness. Watch how you phrase your sentences. Let's meet again in the next volume!!

DO YOU

LORD
ENEL,
THE OLD

GOD.

WHAT WE NEED IS THE

THE SURVIVAL
GAME LASTED

WHAT

TALKING

GO MANGA

CORNER (SHORTENED TO "GOMA")

Oda: I get a lot of questions about the materials I use for my manga. I'm no specialist (hey!), so I'll just present what I tend to use. To be honest, you can use anything.

Muse Manga Paper

A pack has 40 sheets. It's completely white. If you're starting out, it might be better to use paper that has gridlines.

Zebra Round Pen (right)

These are pen nibs. Buy readily available pen holders and insert the nibs.

Pilot Business Ink

Opinions seem divided on this. Most people use drafting ink instead.

IC-Screen

This is screen tone. When you read manga and see panels with a light shade, there's a thin sticker-like sheet that's been cut out and pasted there. It's a lot of work for those who use it often. There are lots of techniques for using it, too.

Okay, with this information you can become a manga artist. All you need is the technique.
